McGOVERN HAS THREE BOUTS ON HAND

Will Fight Callahan This Week and Is Matched With Abe Attell and Yanger.

FORBES SHOULD BEAT TOKELL.

Harry Looks to Have the Advantage in their Battle February 28-General Notes of the Ring.

Terry McGovern and Tim Callahan will furnish the battle of the week (Wednesday) to which most general interest attaches, the men being matched to fight the customary six rounds before a Philadelphia club. They will meet at catchweights, which will probably mean about 129 pounds or thereabouts, and a reasonably fast go is pre-

Callahan's stock was given quite a boost in his home city by his battle with Benny Yanger before a Chicago club, the Philadelphia sports being greatly enthused by his showing and greatly disgusted with the ver-dict handed down in Yanger's favor. It is thought that the fight will attract even a larger house than the recent Corbett-Maynard battle.

This last contest brought the game into some disfavor on account of the policy fol-lowed by the club management. They sold out the standing room in their hall twice over, thus leaving outdoors hundreds of persons who were unable even to crowd into the place. Many of those who succeeded in entering were unable to catch a glimpse of the ring on account of the dense crowd. The whole affair caused much unpleasant

The whole affair caused much unpleasant comment.

No decision will be handed down in the pending battle, so a knockout will have to be secred to give either man a definite mark on his record. If a knockout comes, McGovern, of course, is the man most likely to deliver it. That he will be able to land an effective blow on the shifty Tim, however, Philadelphia followers of the ring strongly disbelieve.

Although the Philadelphia game, limited as it is with restrictions, would not seem

Although the Philadelphia game, limited as it is with restrictions, would not seem to afford a very promising field for fighters, the country's best feather weights have been battaing there of late. Young Corbett is in the West at present, but he was perfectly willing to continue fighting at Philadelphia, had suitable bouts been offered. McGovern is now battling there, and it is said Benny Yanger will head for that city in the near future.

As far as the fighters are concerned the six-round game seems distinctly popular and the general public does not object to this length of bout on account of the fast pace the fighters must follow if they are to win declayely.

It is really laughable to see the explanations given by supporters of certain fighters over the poor snowing made by these same puglitists. One regular attendant at the West End Club fights came cut with a strong defense of Johnny Kelly, whin critics an attached to the Chicago fighter on account of his showing Thursday evening, and stated that Kelly could really fight better than be did; that he merely suiked for four rounds because his objections to the referes were disregarded by Manager Haughton.

The absurdity of this claim is apparent to every one who takes interest in the patrons of the club what they pad to see. They wanted to see a boxing contest; Kelly, according to his supporter's claims, gave them an exhibition of sulking. The management of the club has sufficient business instinct to rule off any fighter who attempts this programme. If it really believed there was a vestige of truth in it.

If Kelly or his press agents really mean to assert that he deliberately laid down, even for four rounds in a fight, his capacity of getting fishts here will be cut short abruptly. There was not doing his best last Thursday; had be falied to do so, he would never

Johnny was not soling his best last Thursday; had be failed to do so, he would never have been given another chance at the club. Moreover, objections raised to the referee of the club, on a fighter's part, are altogether futile. Chaim and Kelly filed objections to the official representative of the institution, but it did them no good beyond causing them to lose some of their local popularity. They merely stirred up some unpleasantness for themselves by senseless objections. ng his best last Thurs-

John Wallrapp, the irrepressible, announces that he has not yet given up hopes of making Lemp's Park Hall a boxing center and that he will endeavor to continue the game on the South Side. He states that he will conduct affairs entirely by himself, hereafter, and that he will try and arrange some bouts for the near future.

Wallrapp had the club left on his hands after last Monday's episode, his associates in the venture deciding that they had had enough of the fighting game from the club manager's statement. Wallrapp states that he still believes in the South Side as a location for a fight club and thinks that one or two fights of merit would put the place on a solid basis. He has not yet announced his intentions for the immediate future.

If Abe Attell and Terry McGovern get together at Fort Erie in a twenty-round go, a contrast in style will indeed be afforded. Local fight followers have falled to enthuse over these same battles of contrasting style, but the present bout seems of exceptional promise, inasmuch as each man is an artist in his way.

McGovern is a perfect type of the rushing, slugging fighter, with far more speed than either Abel or Ryan possessed when those worthes fought Attell. Eighteen months ago, McGovern had his own style of battle developed to as high a point as it was possible to get it; now, it is said, he lacks some of his old-time litting powers. He still is one of the most dangerous men in his class, however, and Attell will need all of his skill to keep away from the former champlon.

The bout will resolve itself into the ques-all of his skill to keep away from the former champion.

The bout will resolve itself into the question of whether Attell can jump away from McGovern and jab him to pieces, as he has done to so many other opponents. With a man of McGovern's tactics, it seems doubtful. It will be recalled that Yanger solved Attell's system in nineteen rounds in this city, although Abe seemed to have a distinct lead over him at the close of the fifteenth round.

No one can accuse McGovern of ever loafing in a bout and he will certainly give Abraham the hardest battle of his life.

Two fights of importance will mark the Abraham the hardest battle of his life.

Two fights of importance will mark the closing days of the present month. Young Corbett and Eddie Hanion will clash on the Pacific Coast Friday evening, February 27, while the following night Harry Forbes and Andy Tokell will the up in Detroit. Both battles should be of great interest.

The Hanion-Corbett fight is, of course, the most featured event on the Coast. Dispatchess from San Francisco state that the feather-weight champion has made himself extremely popular in sporting circles, and that Eddie Hanion also has a strong following among lovers of pugilism. San Francisco is particularly proud of Hanion's boxing ability, and a record-breaking house, for feather-weights, should turn out.

boxing ability, and a record-breaking house, for feather-weights, should turn out.

Before Young Corbett reached the West, talk of a match between Britt and the champlon was current. Much of this was dropped, however, when it was seen how much smaller Corbett was than Britt in appearance. Although there is comparatively little difference in the weight of the men when in condition, half a dozen pounds probably being the sum total, Britt gives the impression of being considerably the larger man of the two.

He is much taller than Young Corbett, yet does not seem lanky in any sense. The feather-weight champlon is so extremely compact and chunky in build that he seems in a lighter class by many pounds than Britt. The result has been a cessation of the proposition to match the fighters. It will probably be revived if Corbett defeata Hanlon.

Andy Tokell is so much of an unknown quantity that speculation on his bout with Forbes's is wasted. Judging entirely from Forbes's ability, however, it would appear as if Harry should win. The men were photographed just before they started for their training quarters and one picture was taken of them sparring. This photo shows that Tokell is of the thin, lanky order of fighter compared to Forbes.

On build alone, nine out of ten followers of pugilism would pick Harry ability, so far that photograph. On fighting ability, so far as can be judged from their records, Forbes has the better of his opponent in every way. If both enter the ring in good condition, it is thought a safe bet that Forbes will win.

Although some details of the match remain to be settled definitely, McGovern and Benny Yanger seem likely to come together March 15, most likely before the Fort Erie Club. Manager Herrman's ultimatum that he would have nothing to do with fighters who preferred to talk rather than use their fists has had a most wholesome effect on the managers of both men. They are getting together in great style, without any of the customary hageling.

The match, as now arranged is to be at 139 pounds, ringside, for 65 to 35 per cent

Schreiber Takes a Long Chance Two Men Have Violent Altercation New Department Will Preside When He Names Colts for Friends Living.

BUCHANAN AND

One Jockey Spoiled by Bad Temper, the Other by a Too Busy Father - Pond on Get-Rich-Quick Schemes.

People never accept a warning these days. Barney Schrieber is naming horses after personal friends who are still alive-an awfully risky thing. Ask any man who makes cigare and is looking for a brand name what he thinks about naming a brand after some man still living. Schrieber has named a brother to that good colt Otis, by Sain-Laura Agnes, after Ed Sheridan, the sporting editor of the Chicago Tribune; and the brother to Corrigan, by Sain-Ada Reese, is named Cfint Riey, after that weil-known writer and track official. Now walt and see how the colts pan out. see how the colts pan out.

Buchanan has been indefinitely suspended from riding at New Orieans. Inis was not beyond the bound of expectation. Three years ago he had no ability whatsoever, and when he was engaged to ride in France for the Vanderbilt stable it came as a great surprise to most Americans. Once in awhile we heard of him winning a race, and it seems as though he began to pick up a few routinents of riding, for, when he returned some little time since, he went to New Orleans and had done just fairly well. One would have thought that with the palpable advantages in front of him, with such a stable connection, and the ball actually at his feet, he would have had sense enough to do good clean work. This was not to be. He rode in a very curious fashion, he was warned and told he must only ride for his stable, and this having no effect, he was simply set down. He has a contract for this season for $0.000, and unless the stewards revoke their decision this contract is so much waste paper. And this is the type of boy the public six times daily during the season trust with the uitimate disposal of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

disposal of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

A curious case will be ventilated within a few days Some time since the good Western handleap horse, George Arnold, was killed in a railroad wreck. He was insured for $20,000 and after an unsuccessful attempt to collect from the company, the owner, J. W. Fuller, has brought suit for $50,000 from the railroad company. The point at issue will be the real value of the norse, the company claiming that the full $50,000 means the prospective value of what he might have won, added to the horse. Well, what of it? In the case of a human death is not the award estimated on the earning capacity of the deceased? George Arnold won the Christmas riandicap and New Orleans in 1901, in one of the pestraces ever run at that track. The finnt decision may establish a valuable precedent.

Thomas W. Lawson offered a series of prizes for the most suitable names to be applied to a number of horses in his possession, and the result has been disturbing. It was all very well to introduce the famous Glorious as a prefix to everything in the horse show line from the Lawson stable, it was not only a magnificent advertisement, but enabled everyone to know at once whose horses they were. When it comes to the result of the late competition with the old triunic names from sire, dam and grandsire, as witness Alboneer. from Allerton Alkebell, Bonita, and Electioneer, it is unscientific and hideous. Why not step at once to the late Charles Collette's great Cryptconchiodphysostigmata and be done with it! The ring called him Cripplies!"

Speaking of the difficulty of dealing with the get-rich-quick schemes, the clever Will F. Pond hits the nail on the head in Sports of the Times, when he says:

The trouble is that the dupes or clients, or whatever one may call them, are dead in love with the feature! They do not wish to be safeguarded. The errnal problem, of in love with the feature! They do not wish to be safeguarded. The eternal problem, of course, is, if there really is money in the game for the promoters, why bother about the outside public and its money? Why daily around with 5, or even 29 per cent of the profit of clients, when by utilizing their own money the promoters could corral the entire hundred per cent at infinitely less initial expense? The old explanation that it would never pay the individual to spend so much for track watches no longer holds. Any experienced man knows what a fake and a balloon that is. The mere fact that their own money is not used would seem to show once and for all time that the firms have not the confidence in their own results which they expect their clients to have It is to be hoped that some way will be found to reach them."

Jockey Redfern's father badly needed dis-Jockey Redfern's father badly needed discipline. This comes of leiting the father of Cochrane run riot. Turfmen have seen what this inflated parent did for the boy who appeared to be several times chipping along with the old block, and, as a result, instead of owners climbing over themselves to gain his services, he is riding thirty or more losers in a string in California, and no wire hums him a contract to be signed before another long breath is taken. Cochrane was once just as prominent, just as promising as Redfern is to-day, yet "Too Much Father" is surely his epitaph on the stone which marks his inevitable decease as a leading lockey.

Even at this early day, John A. Drake rays he has the winner of the American Derby in Van Rouse. Onaik this up somewhere, remember Saratoga and Savable. It's a way Mr. Drake has of throwing people off the scent. Or it was last year. This season may see good hedging. C. R. Ellison also has a Derby winner.

Things Which Precipitated Ill Feeling-No Agreement Reached.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 15.—After being out forty-eight hours, the jury in the case of Doctor J. C. Alexander falled to reach an agreement and was discharged at 10 o'clock this morning.

On the final ballots the vote stood eight for acquittal and four for conviction. On the first ballot taken Saturday morning the vote was seven for acquittal and five for conviction.

On the next ballot the vote stood 8 to 4. That was the ballot from that time until the jury was discharged, with the exception of one or two instances.

There were several serious altercations during the consideration of the evidence in the jury-room.

during the consideration of the evidence in the jury-room.

The principal disagreement was between Jurors James E. White and Robert F. Lingenfelter, and the cause of the personal feelings in the matter was a result of the wives of the jurors being permitted to visit them on Sunday, February 7.

Mrs. White and Mrs. Lingenfelter had conversed concerning the trial before they saw their husbands, and when they went to visit the jurors Mrs. Lingenfelter, it is claimed, told her husband that Mrs. White had told her that Mr. White would be foreman of the jury and that he had been a warm personal friend of Prosecutor Ruckelshaus.

warm personal friend of Prosecutor Ruckelshaus.

After the jury resumed deliberation of the case, Mr. Lingenfeiter accused Mr. White of having come into the case with his mind prejudiced against the defendant and told of the conversation with his wife.

Hot words ensued and the matter almost resulted in blows before the interference of others stopped it.

This had a disjusting effect on Mr. White and later in the day, when he engaged in a heated argument with Jurors Brown and Thiesing, who were in favor of acquittal, he was attacked with heart fallure.

The perplexing question in the minds of the jurors, they say, was whether Doctor Alexander had guilty knowledge of the fact that the body of Rose Neidlinger had been unlawfully taken from the grave.

DETECTIVES EXAMINE TURF CO. RECORDS

Chicago Sleuths Find That Many Agents Have Been Clamoring for Their Money.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 15.-Detectives were busy to-day examining books, papers and letters taken in the various raids made on "get-rich-quick" concerns. They found abundant evidence that the agents of the companies have been clamoring for money sent in for their clients and that some of the agents are anxious that their identity be not disclosed.

One of these is Doctor W. L. Sugget of Flora, Ill., agent for the Brolaski Company,

Things are all torn up here since Arnold went into the air, but I am doing all I can to insure belief in your soundness. Things are coming hard, however, and people are afraid, I did not send my last remittance by draft for I am proprietor of the bank here and affairs might leak out and destroy people's confidence. Henedict & Co. have surprised the police, who believed the firm was on the verge of collapse. Eight hundred clints took their money Saturday, aggregating $27.09. tion Company were more widespread than was at first imagined. In one form or the other it was discovered that they have been operating for several years, and their receipts for a single year never fell under $250,000. In many instances the same person, after being wiped out in his investment, was seen to have invested with the firm which was operating under another one of its names.

A sample was that of James Hertz of a small town in Maryland. It showed that Mr. Hertz had invested $25 in "The Only Way." The method described in a booklet was to invest $1 on the first race and then, if that lost, to invest enough in the next race to win the $1 back and another one.

Mr. Hertz won $60 the first week, $2 the second week, with the names of all the horses set forth, and then on the third week his account was marked "closed," after a steady list of losers had been played for two days.

Some of the horses named as choices by "The Only Way" were of the kind known to have a chance to win if the other horses fell dead. There was nothing to show that this money was actually played.

In all the memoranda examined there could not be found any communications or statements from poolroom men or book-makers showing there had been any dealings with them.

INTERNAL COMMERCE IS TWENTY BILLIONS

is at the head of the world's list of great nations.

Some figures, just compiled by the Treasury Bureau of Statistics, which, by the new law, becomes a part of the Department of Commerce, show the internal commerce of the country to be $33,000,000,000, or equal to the entire international commerce of the world.

to the entire international commerce of the world.

In arriving at this estimate of $20,000,000,000 for the internal commerce of the United States, the Bureau of Statistics includes only one transaction in each article produced, while, in fact, a very large number of the articles produced pass through the hands of several "middle men" between those of the producer and those of the consumer.

The estimate is based upon the figures of the cenus which put the total value of the census, which put the total value of manufactures in 1900 at $13,000,000,000,000, and those of agriculture at nearly $4,000,000,000, and those of minerals about $1,000,000,000. Adding to these the product of the fisherles, the total value of the products of the great industries in 1900 would be more than $18,000,000,000, and the rapid growth in all lines of industry since 1900, especially in manufacturing, seems to justify the conclusion that even a single transaction in all the products of the country would produce an aggregate for 1902 of fully $20,000,000,000. Estimating the internal commerce of the country in former census years by the same method, the Bureau of Statistics finds that the total internal commerce has grown from about $2,000,000 in 1850 to $3,500,000,000 in 1890, $2,500,000,000 in 1890, $7,750,000,000 in 1890 and $12,000,000,000 in 1890. It will be seen from this that the internal commerce seems to have increased 50 per cent in the decade from 1890 to 1900, and is ten times as large in 1902 as in the year 1850.

OUTSTRIPPED POPULATION.

During the same period—from 1850 to 1903—the population has increased from 23,000,000 to 79,000,000, and therefore is only three and a half times as great as in 1850, while the internal commerce is ten times as great as at that time. This relative gain of internal commerce over population is due in part to the greatly increased facilities for transportation, the cheapening of cost of articles utilized, and the increased earnings and increased wealth of the people.

The railroads have increased from 9,021 miles in 1850 to 201,839 miles in 1902, and the estimated wealth of the country from 37,125,789,000 in 1850 to $24,209,000,000 in 1800—a per capita increase of from $308 in 1850 to $1,238 in 1900. This increase in wealth has been accompanied by an increase in deposits in banks, those in savings banks abone increasing from $43,481,130 in 1850 to $2,597,084,580 in 1901.

Meantime, the foreign commerce has made rapid increase, though not at a rate of speed proportionate to that of internal commerce. The imports of 1850 were $173, 509,552; those of 1902, 2003, 2934. The exports in 1850 were $444,375,725; in 1902 $1.381,719,401.

While it is not practicable to measure the internal commerce of other countries with the same accuracy as that of the United States, it is known that, in agricultural products, manufactures and minerals, the United States now outranks the other nations of the world and that the transactions in these products, which form the internal commerce, therefore, may be assumed to surpass those of any other country.

The manufactures of the United States are now about double those of the United Kingdom, and nearly equal to those of France. Germany and Russia combined, while the value of the agricultural products of the United States far exceeds that of any other single country.

He stated yesterday that New York State's appropriation would be at least $300,000, and it is not improbable that even more may be added.

They will address the Rhole Island Legislature in joint session on Tuesday, and will immediately leave for Dover, Del. where they will be given a hearing by the Legislature in joint session on Wednesday.

A. A. AMES ARRESTED IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Former Mayor of Minneapolis, Fugitive on Bribery Charge, Caught at Hancock.

SHELTERED BY A MINISTER.

Is Broken Down in Health and De clares That He Will Fight Attempt to Take Him Back.

Hancock, N. H. Feb. 15-Broken in spirit, a physical wreck, and changed prob ably beyond recognition. Doctor Albert Alonzo Ames, formerly Mayor of Minneapolis, who is wanted in that city on an adictment for attempted bribery, was discovered to-day in the home of a local minster and placed under arrest by Sheriff Doarne of Manchester.

So pitiful was his condition that he was not locked up, but left in charge of a deputy to await the arrival of officers from Minneapolin. After his arrest, however, Ames communicated with former United States District Attorney Charles J. Ham-blatt of Nashua and obtained his services for a fight, which, he says, he will make against extradition.

SHELTERED BY MINISTER.

Doctor Ames has been here for several weeks, although his presence was not known outside of the home of the Reverend C. H. Chapin, who received and sheltered him. Mrs. Chapin is a sister of the woman who accompanied Doctor Ames, and who is supposed to be his wife. The knowledge of this relationship probably led to his detection.

Sheriff Doane received a communication from Chlef of Police Greger of Minneappells, asking him to go to Hancock and see if Ames had sought refuge at the home of his sister-in-law. The Sheriff came here, and after investigation placed Ames under arrest this afternoon.

Doctor Ames is wanted to answer to an indictument for attempted bribery, and also for defaulting his 10,000 bail given at the time of his indictment.

AMES WILL FIGHT.

The prisoner is reported to have declared this afternoon that were he a well man he would return to his home and face the charges, but that under the circumstances he would make a desperate fight. Attorney Hamblett has not yet seen his client but will come here to-morrow. Mr. Hamblett was informed to-day that Doctor Ames was on the verse of a collapse.

Doctor Ames is wonderfully changed from the description of him sent out by the police after his disappearance from that city. He has grown a full beard, and his half is almost white. It is said that he was £2 years of age, but he looks more than 70. Has flesh is much wasted away, and from a physical standpoint he is helpless.

The authorities have known of his location for some time, but it was not until a peremptory order was given by Judge Harrison that steps were taken to have him returned to Minneapolis for trial.

He is accused of offering bribes to County Commissioners in order to have his secretary, T. R. Brown, elected Sheriff to succeed former Sheriff Megaarden, who was removed by the Governor for malfeasance, and also of accepting meney from abandoned women. removed by the Governor for maireasince, and also of accepting meney from abandoned women.

There are four of these indictments. A fifth charges him with conspiracy.

Doctor Ames fled from the city in July and for a long time was at West Baden. Ind. When he was due to appear for trial he was still in Indiana and was reported ill. Later he went to Louisville, Ky., where he was under surveillance for some time.

Just before Sheriff Dreger arrived in Kentucky. Ames was warned by some of his Minneapolis friends and fled to New England. He was in Boston for a time and later went to Hancock, N. H., where a sister of his wife resides.

It has been represented here that his health was such that he could not be returned to the city except at the risk of his life. His bondsmen were the least concerned of any at his continued absence from the city, and they are not the persons who are defraying the expenses of the Sheriff in his pursuit.

comments of the Viennese press on the Venezuelan question have been strikingly. eserved during the course of the negotiations, a leading article in to-night's Wiener Allgemeine Zeitung more than counterbalances that reserve by a frankness that

It is headed "Scrambling (Wetkrochen) for American Favor." After announcing the signature of the protocols, the leader continues:

"The settlement of the Venezuelan affair cannot be regarded as anything save a great political success for the Americans and a still greater success for the Monros Doctrine.

"It had become apparent, during the last few weeks, that the dispute had ceased to be one between Venezuela and the allied Powers and had become one between the latter and the United States.

"The fact that the Venezuelan representative was an American Minister and that the negotiations, instead of being conducted in Caracas, were conducted in Washington, where the protocols have now been signed, was significant to a degree.

"It proved that, notwithstanding the aspirations for independence manifested by the so-called free South and Central American Republics, the United States already controls the hegemony of the entire hemisphere; that it already construes in practice, as it had long done in theory, the Monroe Doctrine to mean "America for America in the Venezuelan question." It displays a nervous anxiety to placate American di-plomacy."
